

THE EVENING STAR.
WASHINGTON.
FRIDAY, July 24, 1896.
CROSBY S. NOYES, Editor.
THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent staff of writers much more than three times as large as that of any other paper, morning or evening, published in Washington. As a news and advertising medium it has no competitor.

THE STAR BY MAIL.
Persons leaving the city for any period can have The Star mailed to them to any address in the United States or Canada, by ordering it at this office, in person or by letter, or postal card. Terms: 13 cents per week; 25 cents for two weeks, or 50 cents per month. Invariably in advance. Subscribers changing their address from one Post-office to another should give the last address as well as the new one.

Obstacles to Sound Money Union.
Those who, like Mr. Whitney, have been laboring for a union of the sound money forces of the two old parties for effect in this campaign find the tariff the principal obstacle in the way of success. Sound money men are very much pleased with Mr. McKinley's interpretation of the financial plank of the St. Louis platform. His views are identical with their own on the subject of protecting the credit of the government. Personally, also, they have a high regard for the man. They like his poise, his dignity, his fine character as a citizen. But they object to his views on the tariff, and they express a fear of committing themselves in some way on that subject if they openly assist in republican success in November. At the same time they will not support Mr. Bryan, believing, as they do, that free coinage of silver would work ruin to the country.

These men express themselves as anxious to get around the difficulty if it can fairly be done. They do not expect Mr. McKinley to abandon his position on the tariff, nor do they intend to abandon their own. Many of them believe that a union of sound money strength is necessary to overcome the silver movement, and hence, all things considered, they are in an anxious frame of mind.

Among the propositions lately submitted to effect this union of strength is this: Let it be understood that the first and most distinctive work to be transacted by the Fifty-fifth Congress in case the sound money men are in majority in the House shall relate to the financial question. No particulars are offered, but it is assumed that as such men will be primarily interested in the tariff, the tariff shall be the first thing to be taken up only to the extent of providing for the deficiency, which both sides agree to create by the present tariff law, due regard being had for the radical difference that exists between the sound money allies as to the fundamental principles of taxation. This, it is insisted, will put matters on an easy basis and restore confidence; and for such an end, it is suggested, a union of men who differ widely on the general principles of economics can be brought about.

As for the tariff proper—for such a revision of the present law as the protectionists insist is necessary for the prosperity of the country—let that question be done by the country at large, let the campaigns of 1898. Let the Fifty-fifth Congress be chosen on that issue. The sound money alliance having accomplished its purpose and been dissolved, sound money protectionists can now put forward their candidates and sound money low-tariff men their candidates, with the tariff as the only issue.

The republican leaders are chary about discussing this proposition. They want all the sound money democratic strength they can get. They realize that they will need a good deal. But the fact confronts them that, according to their claim, the financial question grows out of the tariff question; that no difficulty with the country was developed until a President and a Congress pledged to free trade were elected, and the revenues of the government were reduced to the point of a deficit; and that the surest and promptest way back to the old satisfactory order of things is by a return to the policy of high protection.

Still, the campaign is very young yet, and the full measure of all the dangers has not been taken. Where so much necessity for union exists, union, in the end, may be effected. If no more is asked by sound money democrats than the concession which the Chicago anti-protection platform makes to its protection allies, namely, the postponement of the tariff question, except that involved in the revenue deficiency, until after the financial question is settled, a reasonably effective union of the sound money men on this basis ought to be possible. The republicans will doubtless give careful consideration to Mr. Whitney's warning. If they were all equally positive that the running of a sound money democratic presidential ticket is less desirable than attempted fusion on the suggested basis they would quickly offer concessions. But there is still a difference of opinion on this point.

While no definite announcement on the subject has been made, from sentiments which Mrs. Lease has expressed it is safe to predict that Mr. Lease will vote for Bryan.

The politicians now at St. Louis are so ardent in their dislike of Wall street that they refuse even to be business-like in their methods of holding a convention.

In it is intimated that some of the populists may discover that "the middle of the road" leads only to the center of the soup.

Political Embarrassments.
The embarrassments attending the Chicago platform are rapidly being developed. The original complaint in silver circles was that existing governmental woes were nearly all to be ascribed to the demonetization of silver, and the original proposition was that the silver men of all parties, putting other things temporarily behind them, should get together and set silver on its feet again. A platform on this line was what in many minds was expected of the Chicago convention. But another line was followed—a line so zigzagged that it bewilders and alarms some people—and the result is confusions and divisions among silver men.

The case of Mr. Bailey of Texas illustrates the difficulty in one quarter. He is a democrat—believes in free coinage, and all that. He advocates free coinage, and so strongly that he was willing that that be made the issue this year. He went to Chicago as a delegate to help bring that about. He spoke and worked for that. But that policy failed. So many things were put into the platform of which Mr. Bailey does not approve that he announces his retirement from public life. If the democracy should win on the platform adopted here, if a member of the next Congress would have to antagonize it in opposing the legislation that would be brought forward to make its promises good. Therefore, Mr. Bailey will not stand for re-election. He drops out, and will await developments.

The case of Senator Don Cameron illustrates the difficulty in another quarter. Mr. Cameron is a friend of silver—very warm a friend as to have sacrificed himself, many believe, to the white metal. He is going out of public life largely as the result of going counter to the hands of the money question. He was on the list of those anxious for a straight silver deliverance at Chicago, and partly pledged to support a ticket so nominated. It is announced now that Mr. Cameron cannot support the Chicago platform. It is too extreme for him. He is still for silver, but the things with which silver has now been allied are repugnant to him, and he will support Mr. McKinley.

The case of Mr. Teller is peculiar. He is a republican in everything but his adherence to the cause of silver. The St. Louis platform is not objectionable to him in any line except as it treats of the money question, and it is regarded as a safe statement that, except in its declaration for free coinage, the Chicago platform is not acceptable to him in any line. But Mr. Teller expected to be nominated at Chicago. The "pins" were set up with that end in view. His friends worked hard to get him elected. The scheme failed, but he is still a republican. Mr. Teller is committed. He feels himself obliged to support Mr. Bryan. To reject the nomination would subject him to the accusation of acting from influences of personal disappointment.

But are other western silver republicans in sympathy with the full democratic platform? Will they unreservedly accept the populist features of it and support it unanimously and heartily at the polls? The reported intention of Senator Cannon of Utah, who bolted at St. Louis, to return to the republican party, may suggest the doubt and hesitation which prevail on this point in the average silver republican, and the feeling that too much may be sacrificed by the populist endorsement of Bryan at St. Louis, and the addition through the platform there adopted of other populist plans and principles to those which the Chicago nominee already represents.

The lesson taught is that in the case of coalitions it is not true that the whole is equal to the sum of all the parts. The silver coalition, if fusion of its various elements were perfect, would be invincible; but that fusion is not and cannot be perfect.

A remarkable communication is that which came from St. Petersburg today, and which appears elsewhere in The Star. Truth is always stranger than fiction, but the particular scrap of fiction to which the writer of the communication refers with disapproval appears to have possessed so much of the similitude of truth that an intelligent reader finds it necessary to send us a contradiction. The uncommon incident testifies to the fact that even in far-away Russia—in such a center as St. Petersburg—The Star is eagerly and completely devoured by minds hungry for good reading-matter.

Respectable people cannot help feeling gratified at the fact that the two powers who were refused the privilege of fighting in Virginia a few nights since are still engaged, and unsuccessfully, in trying to find some spot in this vicinity where the holding of a financially-successful prize fight is possible. Washington is rapidly becoming the most desirable place of residence, in every respect, on all this continent.

The sergeant-at-arms of the populist convention is still indignantly searching for the conspirator who blew out the electric lights.

It was to be expected that the critics would discover that a good deal of our campaign "chin-music" is "reminiscent."

At present the populists appear to have one eye on political principles and the other on political pie.

SHOOTING STARS.
Objectionable.
Dah's lot of folks puts in dah time (1 badly kin endure 'em)
A-talkin' 'bout dah troubles 'tild
O' hustlin' roun' ter cure 'em.

A Distinction.
"Senator Sorghum isn't doing much in politics at the present time," said the visitor.
"No," replied the constituent.
"I'm glad to see he got out of it."
"Wal, they ain't any doubt 'bout his bein' out; only there is some difference of opinion as to whether he got or was put."

A Canine Explanation.
He saw the net the catcher had
And gave a growl malignant;
"Be calm," quoth he, "I am not mad,
But righteously indignant."

In a Quandary.
"Gimme a wig and a full beard," he said as he rushed into a costumer's establishment at St. Louis.
"What's the matter?" asked the clerk, whose curiosity was excited by the man's agitation.
"It all comes 'long o' payin' too much attention to what my wife said. I made up a fine speech, an' I ain't had no chance ter deliver it. Fust thing I know the time'll be all talked up, an' I'll hev ter go along through the years with this speech on my mind. My wife made me slick up 'fore I come ter town. I'm bald-headed, anyhow, and when I got shaved, I was fixed up so I couldn't git no recognition from the chair in my natural state if the convention lasted a century."

Song.
(For use at the present St. Louis convention.)
Oh, we are rollicking, rollicking pops,
We can talk if we wish, till the universe stops.
We're a vigorous sort at a story or song,
Our finances are short and our whiskers are long;
And that's why
We're here to apply
For various changes, both starling and new.

Serenely we're looking ahead to the day
When d'monds won't cost near as much as baled hay.
And a blue gingham shirt, when we've counted our vote,
Will be stylisher far than a swallow-tail coat.

And that's why
We're here to apply
For a share of the spoils which we reckon our due,
And we don't have to wait
For a cause for debate,
'Most any old cause (so it's different)
Will do.

The Best Report.
From the Empire State Endeavorer.
We have received a bundle of The Washington Evening Star of the issue of July 8 to 14, containing a full report of the recent convention. The Star is the leading paper and gave the best report of the convention. It is issued on Sunday and was in great favor during the convention.

SAKS
Such A Saturday
as we shall have tomorrow—you and us. The nearer it gets to stock-taking time the more reckless we get—and we have struck the heaviest blows of all in these present offerings.

It's a family affair—reductions in which every man, woman and child is interested.

Boys' Straw Hats = 10c.
To be sure, they're odds and ends—but the values run up as high as $1. They're all huddled together in a pile. A medley of styles and sizes in Boys' Yachts and Children's Sailors. We'll wrap up what you select—10c.

Children's Straw Sailors—
The whole stock goes—all the plain ones—43d the fancy ones—the fine and the finest.
All the 48c. ones. 35c.
All the 75c. ones. 58c.
All the $1.25 ones. 85c.
All the $1.75 ones. 98c.
All the $2.50 ones. 98c.

Ladies' Straw Sailors—
When we announce clearing sales we are in dead earnest—everything is included. These reductions give you the choice of all our Sailors—the Blacks—the Blues—the Browns—and the White Hats.
All the 75c. ones. 50c.
All the $1.00 ones. 98c.
All the $1.50 ones. 98c.
All the $2.00 ones. 98c.

Ladies' Shirt Waists—
News comes of busy days in Baltimore among the waist makers supplying Washington merchants with ammunition for special sales. When imagination marks the value, look out! Look out for small steaks. Look out for old stock! We're not job lot buyers. Our Shirt Waist offering is of our own regular stock. ALL of it—and ONLY it. Every body knows what a superior stock it is, too. What we want to say is, it's worth TRYING WORTH—actually. Our reductions REDUCE. Indeed they do—to below cost! We want to clear the counters, you know.
